“What I enjoy most about complex litigation is turning complicated facts and legal issues into a clear, persuasive strategy that helps clients navigate significant legal challenges with confidence.”

BIOGRAPHY

Matthew works with clients through all stages of high-stakes litigation, helping them address complex legal issues while protecting their professional reputations and business interests. Prior to joining the firm, Matthew served as an Assistant District Attorney with the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office, where he handled numerous misdemeanor and felony matters and developed substantial trial and courtroom experience. Matthew also previously worked as a healthcare litigation associate at a large law firm in Charlotte, where he represented North Carolina healthcare systems in medical malpractice matters. Matthew leverages this diverse experience to advocate for clients throughout the dispute resolution process and to develop practical strategies aimed at achieving favorable outcomes.
